To The Reader:

This will be one of two entries to this series. The first tackles correspondences pertaining to the well-known 72 demons as mentioned in The Lesser Keys of Solomon in particular, and a larger document including as many Goetic demons as can be realistically sourced will be forged when time permits. Said work is about 35% complete as of writing, and will need much time to locate information for lesser-known demons, or channel it myself. The below information mostly mirrors what has been stated in my draft for said compilation, but as the 72 demons are who many demonolaters prefer to work with, I believe this can satisfy some people's desire, and it certainly was fun to create. For others, this may work as a quick and handy resource for those sensing an interest in pursuing a relationship with any number of these divinities. See this piece as a stepping stone, more than anything.

Different practitioners will assign different links to the below given demons. This compilation is just one more entry into a pool of correspondences applied to these divinities. As a result, what I have stated may conflict with beliefs of others and that is to be recognised – everyone applies their own correspondences to demons, especially where relationships have been built. This work is simply taking a basic concept and working with it for sake of foundation. Take what you read here with a grain of salt and with knowledge that these correspondences are not stagnant, nor the only valid created set of associations. Furthermore, they are not exhaustive, and come from more than one source. Despite being a controversial figure, Crowley's "777 and Other Qabalistic Writings (1982), York Beach", among others, have been selected to appear in this correspondence sheet, and all dates of highest power align with their respective Decans and dates in the current period, as of writing.

Understandably, not all will enjoy taking from this author's works, or any number of my stated sources, and I full respect the decision to discard this piece should it come to that. Not all sources will be listed with how many accounts of unverified personal gnosis exist, just a general outline. All sources used, or at least worthy of perusal, can be found at the end of this piece.

If the provided does not suit the needs of your practice (such as using rank of Earl from one grimoire compared to rank of Marquis in other sources and so on), feel free to exchange the compiled data if it serves this purpose for you instead). Gender does not really apply to the divine in my practices, so while I stick to stating "Duke" for sake of consistency in this text as outlined in old tomes, do not mistake this as how divinities operate in personal practices. There are simply preferences in presentation, in my opinion. Nevertheless, all is presented as they are found in tomes with expansion of their affiliations in line with classic literature and personal experiences etc.

Though debate exists surrounding metal and planetary associations of certain ranks, some practitioners removing them altogether – to each their own. I have positioned Mars and Jupiter into this compilation rather than simply stating equal parts Copper and Silver. A chemically produced iron link formed through Sterling silver's tarnish, for example. One could suggest Aquerite as representative of Presidential rank, a rare amalgam of silver and mercury, but I do not believe this to be a replacement for the modern day accepted Jupiteran metal – tin. It also means we are not seeking out dreadfully rare (and dangerous) metals should we want to use them in our practices. All plants and resins listed are done so due to strong alignment with demonic planetary associations. It is often case that overlap crosses planetary associations for herbs and resins, so care has been taken to measure and provide those with strongest affiliation to each planetary influence. Otherwise, should intuition tell me to write one above the other, this will be done instead. The preferred system of associations plainly used here in relation to spirit is the following, respectively:

- Monday – Moon – Water – Silver – Purple/Violet – Camphor
- Tuesday – Mars – Fire – Iron – Red – Dragon's Blood
- Wednesday – Mercury – Air – Mercury – Orange – Storax

- Thursday – Jupiter – Air – Tin – Blue – Cinnamon, Balm
- Friday – Venus – Water – Copper – Green – Sandalwood
- Saturday – Saturn – Air – Lead – Black – Musk, Myrrh, Civet
- Sunday – Sun – Fire – Gold – Gold/Yellow – Frankincense

Ancient writers did not include all planets, as to the Ancient Egyptians and Mesopotamians – there were only five visible planets, and seven as our understanding expanded (circa 4th or 3rd century BC onward*), and this latter will be used. Modern observations will not be applied unless justified (lack of sources and general information). As alluded to, great overlap naturally occurs in all that pertains to spirit. Not all experiences will be the same, yet the standard information classically used will be given where available. Where none such are found, this is where personal attributes will be offered as some form of foundation to work from. Feel free to swap information where your beliefs speak otherwise.

*Heraclides of Pontos (4th Century BC) or Heratosthenes (3rd century BC).

If planetary correspondences are all you need, then the above page should suffice, and can be written on a simple Post-It Note. If you're the type to be curious about Zodiac signs, demonic enns, directions, times, and so on – please feel free to continue reading.

While note the completed work, this piece is also dedicated to beautiful Gremory, and her advice to continue this project. Ave Gremory!
